Sydney Weidlich's love for exploring grew when she traveled the year after high school. Learning about new cultures in India, Nepal, Patagonia, and Cuba, she discovered her ability to adapt to new cultures, and understand perspectives different from those of the small town she grew up in. From staying in homestays with local families, working in a team to complete service projects, trying the local cuisine, Sydney is always ready for the next adventure. Some of her highlights include trekking in the Himalayas, teaching kids English and working with an NGO that supports street children in the slums of Delhi.

Sydney's open-mindedness and desire to push herself out of her comfort zone continues at the University of Oregon, where she studies International Business with a concentration in Marketing. She became interested in marketing when learning how businesses can use creativity to grow their business. She hopes to use her marketing skills to further establish global connections and foster creative ideas.
